His Excellency François Delattre, Ambassador of France to the United States

Historically, France and the United States have had strong ties, dating back to the American Revolution and early French colonization in North America. To this day, the US-French relationship is continually strengthened by our diplomatic and economic relations.

Ambassador Delattre's remarks to the World Affairs Council of Charlotte will focus on the US-French relationship as it pertains to the political, economic and common values shared between both countries.

Biography:

François Delattre was appointed Ambassador of France to the United States in February 2011 after serving as Ambassador of France to Canada (2008-2011), Consul General in New York (2004-2008) and Press and Communications Director at the French Embassy in Washington, D.C. (1998-2002).

A member of President Jacques Chirac's foreign policy team (1995-1998), François Delattre was responsible for European and trans-Atlantic defense and security matters and managing the Bosnian crisis.

He also served as Deputy Director of the French Foreign Minister's Office (2002-2004) and was a member of Foreign Minister Alain Juppé's cabinet (1993-1995), following two years with the Strategic, Security and Disarmament Department of the French Foreign Ministry (1991-1993).

François Delattre was posted in Bonn at the French Embassy in Germany (1989-1991), where he was in charge of matters pertaining to the economic impact of Germany's unification and the environment.
